Contest rules

The length of the contest is 5 hours, the committee may adjust the duration due to any emergency issue and announce to the participants.

References and stationery that a team can bring into the contest area:

- [1] No limit number of books and printed materials;
- [2] Pens, pencils, rulers, compasses, and so on

Any electronic devices (e.g., smart phones, personal computers, USB flash disks, memory cards, portable disks, and programmable calculators) should not be taken into the contest.

The contest will follow the ICPC rules <https://icpc.global/regionals/rules>.

Upon registration, participants are required to present identification document for identity verification. During the contest, the webcam will capture the image of each contestant to confirm the attendance. Photographs are taken in the arena, and participation in the event constitutes consent to be photographed/recorded by the cameras.

Participants are not allowed to communicate with anyone except the members from the same team and the staff. When participants need explanation to problems, they can request clarification via DOMjudge. The general announcement will be broadcast to every team.

Attempts to the questions are submitted via LAN, and each submission will be judged as either correct or incorrect, with real-time feedback to the teams. A 20-minute time penalty will be given to the team for each incorrect submission. Teams will be ranked according to the number of correct solutions and time penalty. If multiple teams have the same number of solutions, the team with the lowest time penalty will be ranked higher.

The scoreboard will be frozen for 60 minutes before the contest ends.

The size of the submitted source code must not exceed 256 KiB.

If you need to quit during the contest, please explain to the staff. You may not return to the contest after leaving the venue.

The computer settings of the contest shall not be modified arbitrarily. If any malicious modification of the computer settings is found, the participating team will be disqualified from the contest.
